Opening:	During World War II, the hotel, which has been in possession of the Geisel family since 1936, was used as headquarter for the occupying powers until its reopening in 1956. In 1986, the hotel was completely renovated, implementing a groundbreaking architecture and design. Expansion of the hotel in 2012, modernization of the conference rooms in 2014. And the renovations continue. In 2017, the guest rooms were renewed and the lobby as well as the facade of the ancient building were re-designed. The expansion of the restaurant Vinothek by Geisel was just completed.
Concept:	Compared to the other Geisel hotels, the Excelsior is the richest in tradition. Influenced by old Bavarian residences, the four-star-hotel uses wood paneling in the restaurant and wall paintings in the lobby. For an authentic experience, the staff is dressed in original local costumes.
Rooms & Suites:	There are 114 classy but cozy rooms at the Excelsior. The 76 double rooms, 26 single rooms and 12 suites stand out with a bright color scheme, decent elegance, and lightness. Especially recommendable are the alpine rooms with their lean, urban interior design. The bathroom combines natural stones from the Dolomites with glass walls working with wooden elements. On
